Our collection and processing of the information you provide may vary depending upon the circumstances, such as the role, responsibilities, location, and qualifications associated with a position. The information in this Notice is intended to provide an overall description of our collection and use of personal information about Applicants.

We may also provide you additional privacy notices regarding our collection, use or disclosure of information from and about you. Please read this Notice and any other privacy notices we provide to you carefully. Please note that this Notice does not form part of any employment contract or contract to provide services.

1. Types of Personal Information We Handle

We collect, use, and store various types of information that identifies, relates to, or could reasonably be linked to you (“personal information”) in connection with your application for employment with us. We collect such information either directly from you or (where applicable) from another person or entity, such as professional networking websites, job posting websites, employment agencies, recruitment companies, individuals that refer you to us (which may include our own employees), academic institutions, background check providers, or your professional references. We may collect additional personal information throughout the course of your application process.

The information we collect from and about Interos Applicants includes, where applicable:

- Identifiers such as first and last name, postal address, telephone number, and email address, and, if provided an offer, identifiers related to your citizenship documents, such as Social Security Number, national ID card, passport, and copies of work permits and birth certificates (which include date and place of birth).
- Professional or employment-related information, including:
 - Recruitment, employment, or engagement information such as application forms and information included in a resume, cover letter, or otherwise provided through the application and recruitment process; information about your eligibility to work in the country where you are applying for a job, such as information related to citizenship and/or immigration status; references; our evaluations of your performance during the interview process; and if provided an offer, background screening results (including any criminal convictions, in accordance with applicable law).
 - Career information such as past employers, titles, job history, work dates and work locations, salary expectations, notice period, and information about skills, qualifications, and experience.
- Education information such as institutions attended, degrees, academic record, certifications, licenses, transcript information, and professional memberships.
- Business travel and expense information such as travel itinerary information and expenses incurred for travel during the interview process.
- Audio or visual information such as photos provided in connection with a resume as well as other information relating to the security of our premises collected during in-person interviews or other parts of the recruitment process, and video or audio recordings of events and recruitment activities. Sensitive/ protected classification information to the extent required or as permitted by law and voluntarily provided such as race/ethnicity, nationality, sex/gender, gender identity, citizenship, religion, marital status, military service, disability, race, accommodation information, and other information to help us monitor compliance with equal opportunity legislation.

- Other information that you may voluntarily choose to include on your resume, in connection with your application, or otherwise.

2. How We Use Personal Information

We may collect, use, disclose, and store personal information for our business purposes, which include, where applicable:

- Engaging in the recruitment process, including communicating with you, interviewing, and selecting and hiring new personnel.
- HR management and administration, including onboarding, determining compensation, scheduling, IT and informational security purposes, fraud prevention, and conducting internal analyses and audits.
- Security operations, including detecting security incidents, debugging and repairing errors, and preventing unauthorized access to our computer and electronic communications systems and preventing malicious software distribution; monitoring and controlling access to our premises and locations and safeguarding Interos and its locations, services, and employees.
- Safeguarding Interos and our services, including the protection of Interos, our workforce, users, partners, and others.
- M&A and other business transactions, including for planning, due diligence and implementation of commercial transactions, for example mergers, acquisitions, asset sales or transfers, bankruptcy or reorganization or other similar business transactions.
- Legal compliance, such as complying with applicable laws, and responding to and cooperating with legal or regulatory requests and investigations.
- At your request, in order to fulfil your instructions.
- Exercising our legal rights, including seeking legal advice from our external lawyers or in connection with litigation with a third party.

We may also use personal information for any other legally permitted purpose (subject to your consent, where legally required).

Legal Bases for Processing. Some jurisdictions require us to state our “legal bases” for processing your personal information as described in this Notice (e.g., the UK and EU). These legal bases are:

- Contract: We may process your personal information as necessary to perform a contract with you, such as to enter into an employment agreement with you.
- Legal obligation: We may process your personal information to comply with a legal obligation or request, such as to comply with employment laws.
- Legitimate interest: We may process your personal information for purposes of our or another party’s legitimate interests, such as to maintain the security of our premises, personnel, and property.
- Consent: We may process your personal information consistent with your consent to the extent permitted by applicable law.

3. How We Disclose Personal Information

We may disclose certain personal information to the following types of entities or in the following circumstances, where applicable:

- Internally: To employees within Interos who participate in the recruitment process, such as HR managers and employee interviewers, and among our corporate affiliates.
- Vendors: Such as background check companies, security providers, information technology providers, travel management companies, and employment businesses (e.g., recruiting contractors or agency workers) that provide us with services relevant to recruiting and hiring.
- Recruiters: To the extent you are working with a recruiter in connection with your application for employment and your recruiter is authorized by you to obtain feedback from us regarding your application and interview process.
- Legal compliance and exercising legal rights: (i) When required to do so by law, regulation, or court order, (ii) in response to a request for assistance by a law enforcement agency; (iii) to seek legal advice from our external lawyers or in connection with litigation with you or a third party or (iv) as otherwise necessary to exercising our legal rights or to protect Interos or its employees.
- Business transaction purposes: In connection with the sale, purchase, or merger of all or a portion of our company.
- Consent: With your consent and as permitted by law, we may disclose personal information to any other parties in any other circumstances.

The entities to which we disclose Application information for the purposes described in this Notice may be located in jurisdictions outside of your jurisdiction of residence. In such situations, we will perform appropriate diligence to determine whether the third-party recipient can process and protect such personal information in a manner at least as robust as is required under applicable law.

4. Data Retention

The personal information we collect from Interos Applicants will be retained until we determine it is no longer necessary to satisfy the purposes for which it was collected and our legal obligations. As described above, these purposes include our business operations and complying with reporting, legal and accounting obligations. In determining how long to retain information, we consider the amount, nature and sensitivity of the information, the potential risk of harm from unauthorised use or disclosure of the personal information, the purposes for which we process the personal information and whether we can achieve those purposes in other ways, the applicable legal requirements, and our legitimate interests.

5. Personal Information Rights

Depending on your jurisdiction of residence, you may have certain rights regarding your personal information. As provided in applicable law, these rights may include:

- Request access certain of your personal information, including the right to obtain confirmation of whether we are processing your personal information, obtain a copy of that information, and know certain information about our processing of your personal information, such as our processing purposes;
- Request correction of certain of the personal information that we have about you that is inaccurate;
- Request deletion or removal of certain of your personal information; or
- Object to or request restriction of certain processing activities.

We will not discriminate against you for exercising your rights. In certain jurisdictions, you may also have the right to lodge a complaint with your local data protection authority if you believe we have processed your personal information in violation of applicable data protection law. However, we encourage Applicants to raise any complaint with us first so we can do our best to resolve it.

Exceptions: There are certain exceptions to the above rights. For instance, we may retain your personal information if it is reasonably necessary for us or our service providers to provide a service that you have requested, to comply with law, or to detect security incidents, protect against malicious, deceptive, fraudulent, or illegal activity or prosecute those responsible for that activity. In addition, we reserve the right not to process requests that are manifestly unfounded or excessive, as provided in applicable law, or that we are not legally obligated to process.

Exercising your rights: To exercise your rights, please contact us and specify the right(s) you want to exercise and the personal information with respect to which you want to exercise such right(s). You can submit your request by emailing us at privacy@interos.ai. We may take reasonable steps to verify your identity before responding to a request, and to do so, we may ask you for additional information to verify your identity.

California disclosure: California law places certain obligations on businesses that “sell” personal information to third parties or “share” personal information with third parties for “cross-context behavioral advertising” as those terms are defined under the California Consumer Privacy Act. We do not “sell” or “share” the personal information covered by this Notice and have not done so in the twelve months prior to the effective date of this Notice.

Please note that to the extent we collect sensitive/protected classification information, we do not process such information for purposes subject to the “right to limit” under California law. Accordingly, we only use and disclose such sensitive information about California Applicants as reasonably necessary and proportionate: (i) to perform our services requested by you; (ii) to help ensure security and integrity, including to prevent, detect, and investigate security incidents; (iii) to detect, prevent and respond to malicious, fraudulent, deceptive, or illegal conduct; (iv) to verify or maintain the quality and safety of our services; and (v) for compliance with our legal obligations.
